Notes from Fr. John: Remembering 9/11

Dearly Beloved in Christ:

Glory to Jesus Christ!

We are presently commemorating the 20th anniversary of the tragic events of September 11, 2001. I myself remember especially Brendan Dolan, my high school classmate (Fordham Prep, Class of 1982) who perished that day, a victim of the attacks on the Twin Towers, where he worked. I do not pretend that Brendan and I were more than acquaintances, but it is sobering to have actually known a direct victim of 9/11's tragic events. Memory Eternal!

O Lord, remember the departed. O Lord, console those who mourn. O Lord, bring to repentance all perpetrators of violence and terror.

Our bishop, His Beatitude Metropolitan TIKHON, has written a good letter for us to be edified by on this occasion. It can be read here, at this link on the website of the Orthodox Church in America: <https://www.oca.org/holy-synod/statements/his-beatitude-metropolitan-tikhon/remembering-9-11-twenty-years-later>.

Let us not wallow in grief or despair or rage. Rather, let us repent of our sins and honor the victims of ungodly violence and terror by recommitting ourselves to Christ and His Holy Church, endeavoring to live beautiful Christian lives, not by our own strength, but by the strength of God, Who strengthens us (see, Philippians 4:13).

With love in Christ,

Fr. John H.

The Sign of the Cross

by Clark Carlton

(An excerpt from his book "The Faith: Understanding Orthodox Christianity – An Orthodox Catechism")

The most common act of devotion for an Orthodox Christian is to make the sign of the Cross. This is done by bringing the thumb and first two fingers of the right hand together and tucking the remaining two fingers into the palm. Then we bless ourselves in a crosswise fashion, touching the forehead, breast, right shoulder, and then the left.

Unfortunately, many people do not fully appreciate the significance of this action. The non-Orthodox do not understand such physical acts of devotion and often look upon the sign of the Cross as some sort of empty ritual or even as a "good-luck charm." Sadly, even many Orthodox Christians use the sign in a haphazard manner, paying little attention to the proper outward form or to the inner meaning. The sign of the Cross, however, should not simply be brushed aside as a piece of optional piety, for by this little gesture the Christian sums up the entire teaching of the Church.

By bringing the thumb and the first two fingers of the right hand together, we signify the doctrine of the Trinity. In doing so, we confess that we believe not in an impersonal being, but in a personal God – the God who is Love. We confess that we believe in and worship the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit: three co-eternal and co-equal persons in one undivided Godhead.

By tucking the remaining two fingers into the palm, we signify the doctrine of the Incarnation. In this way we confess that God has become man – that the Second Person of the Holy Trinity took upon Himself our humanity while remaining God from all eternity. Thus, we confess that Christ is both fully God and fully man – not 50% God and 50% man, but 100% God and 100% man.

Furthermore, by making the sign of the Cross in this way, we confess the depth of the love of God toward us. For by dying on the Cross, Jesus Christ – One of the Holy Trinity – took upon Himself the ultimate consequence of man's Fall – death itself – in order to raise us up and give us the eternal life of the Holy Trinity. By touching the forehead, breast, and shoulders, we commend our mind, our heart, and our...

...strength to the power of the precious and life-giving Cross, and we remind ourselves that we must take up our own Cross and follow our Lord:

Rejoice! Cross of the Lord: through you mankind has been delivered from the curse. Shattering the enemy by your Exaltation, O all-venerable Cross, you are a sign of true joy. You are our help, you are the strength of kings, the power of righteous men, the majesty of priests. All who sign themselves with you are freed from peril. O Cross, rod of strength under which we like sheep are tended, you are a weapon of peace around which the angels stand in fear. You are the divine glory of Christ, Who grants the world great mercy (A Hymn of the Feast of the Holy Cross from the Festal Menaion).

Orthodox Christians begin each day with the sign of the Cross and the invocation of the All-holy Trinity. Furthermore, we should sign ourselves with the Cross not only at the beginning of our prayers, but also before beginning any task. In this way, we commend each and every moment of the day to the All-holy Trinity and the protection of the Holy Cross of our Lord.

When the bishop serves at the Liturgy, he blesses the faithful with the sign of the Cross in a special way. He holds a three-branched candlestick, called a trikirion, in his right hand and a two-branched candlestick, called a dikirion, in his left. With these he blesses the People of God in a crosswise fashion. In the person of her sacramental head, the bishop, the Church confesses her unwavering faith in all that the Holy Trinity has done for the salvation of mankind. By this all of the faithful are blessed, for they are guarded by the power of the Cross in the worship of the undivided Trinity and in the confession that Jesus Christ—God made man—is the Lord of all.

Readings from Holy Scripture

Scripture Readings for the 12th Sunday after Pentecost

The Reading from the First Epistle of the Holy Apostle Paul to the Corinthians (1 Cor. 15:1-11)

Brothers and Sisters: I would remind you in what terms I preached to you the gospel, which you received, in which you stand, by which you are saved, if you hold it fast—unless you believed in vain. For I delivered to you as of first importance what I also received, that Christ died for our sins in accordance with the scriptures, that he was buried, that he was raised on the third day in accordance with the scriptures, and that he appeared to Cephas, then to the twelve. Then he appeared to more than five hundred brethren at one time, most of whom are still alive, though some have fallen asleep. Then he appeared to James, then to all the apostles. Last of all, as to one untimely born, he appeared also to me. For I am the least of the apostles, unfit to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God. But by the grace of God I am what I am, and his grace toward me was not in vain. On the contrary, I worked harder than any of them, though it was not I, but the grace of God which is with me. Whether then it was I or they, so we preach and so you believed.

The Reading from the Gospel according to Saint Matthew (Matt. 19:16-26)

At that time, a young man came to Jesus, kneeling before him and saying, "Good Teacher, what good deed must I do, to have eternal life?" And Jesus said to him, "Why do you call me good? There is no good but One, and that is God. If you would enter life, keep the commandments." He said to Jesus, "Which?" And Jesus said, "You shall not kill, You shall not commit adultery, You shall not steal, You shall not bear false witness, Honor your father and mother, and, You shall love your neighbor as yourself." The young man said to Jesus, "All these I have observed from my youth; what do I still lack?" Jesus said to him, "If you would be perfect, go, sell what you possess and give to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; and come, follow me." When the young man heard this he went away sorrowful; for he had great possessions. And Jesus said to his disciples, "Truly, I say to you, it will be hard for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven. Again I tell you, it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God." When the disciples heard this they were greatly astonished, saying, "Who then can be saved?" But Jesus looked at them and said to them, "With men this is impossible, but with God all things are possible."
